

Aukje Mantel-Teeuwisse

Aukje Mantel-Teeuwisse (PharmD, PhD) is appointed professor of Pharmacy and Global Health at Utrecht University, the Netherlands and the Managing Director of the WHO Collaborating Centre for Pharmaceutical Policy and Regulation (www.pharmaceuticalpolicy.nl).

Aukje obtained her PharmD in 1998 at Utrecht University. After a few months working as a community pharmacist, she started her PhD studies at the Division of Pharmacoepidemiology and Clinical Pharmacology of Utrecht University. After completion of her thesis in 2004 she worked as an assistant professor and later as associate professor at the same Division. In the period 2005-2010 she worked part-time at the Dutch Medicines Evaluation Board as a liaison between UU and the MEB. As Managing Director of the WHO Collaborating Centre of Pharmaceutical Policy and Regulation she works closely together with WHO HQ and EURO, WHO Collaborating Centres and a wide range of other stakeholders in the field of pharmaceutical policies and access to medicines. Her research interests include global health, pharmaceutical policy analysis, drug regulatory science, and variation in medicines use across countries. She published > 135 articles in peer-reviewed journals on these topics (see PubMed).

Aukje has been appointed Director of the School of Pharmacy at Utrecht University since July 2014. In this capacity she is member of a number of (external) committees and working groups. She is involved in the bachelor and master Pharmacy programmes as well as in the master Drug Innovation programme.

